 perfect weather with a speeding tail wind being crowded which were quickly reduced from other years because of the speed of Gen. Douglas MacArthur before Congress which kept people at their radios and TV sets.

THIRD PLACE went to 35-year-old Athanasios Ragozas, the Greek national champion who finished sixth here in 1947. His time was 2:35:27 and he was closely followed just 22 seconds later by the best Negro performer in the event's history, Wee Lo White of New York. Only 36:47 1/2 minutes tall the speed skating and hand-ball champion finished third two years ago.

FIFTH PLACE was taken by the Japanese national marathon champion who had led the race for 25 miles. Shunji Koyanagi. His time was 2:52:36. He faded badly after he was overtaken by his half-breared conservator at Chestnut Hill avenue just before the College Corner checking station. Koyanagi had smashed the course record in 1946. He marked only to all but collapse in the stretch.

The race 10 was completed in West. It was in 1933 when John Kelly of New York, the 1933 American champion, the Gerry Cole of Canada, four-time champion between 1929 and 1935. (Continued from First Page)
